What's something most people may not know about you?
In October 2009, I ran the Baltimore Half-Marathon in 2 hours, 38 minutes.

What makes you want to come to work every day?
The opportunity to make a positive difference at CCNC. We all need each other and we all count on each other. Every person matters every day.

What person(s) has meant the most to you in your career?
The instructors at UMBC’s Erickson School of Aging in Baltimore. They shaped my view of the enhanced delivery of aging services. That vision inspires me every day.

What's the best advice you've ever received? Who said it and how do you apply it?
My instructor for “Law, Ethics and the Older Adult” was 83 years old. He caused us to ask, “When does an older adult lose their right to make a bad decision?” It makes me think! Quality of life includes an element of risk. I am mindful every day not to take that away from people.

Over your time at Asbury, what do you consider your best personal accomplishment?
Transitioning from Asbury Solomons to CCNC last year. This unexpected challenge turned out to be an opportunity to grow exponentially, both personally and professionally. The tapestry of life never ceases to amaze me.
